Feed Mt Anderson

Feed (2002) is a young adult dystopian novel of the cyberpunk subgenre written by M. T. Anderson. The novel focuses on issues such as corporate power, consumerism, information technology, data mining, and environmental decay, with a sometimes sardonic, sometimes somber tone. From the first-person perspective of a teenager, the book takes place in a near-futuristic American culture completely ...

Feed (Anderson novel) - Wikipedia

"Feed" is different from other dystopian young adult novels out there, and it's unfair to compare it to others. Anderson doesn't want to give us strong characters we can relate to, and he doesn't want us to think everything will be fine in the end. This novel is a warning.

Feed is a novel that needs to be experienced. Anderson projects a world where fast-paced internet consumerism has taken over society, where people have the internet basically wired into their bodies, directly feeding them a stream of advertisement based on their every random thought. It's cleverly done.

Feed by M.T. Anderson - Goodreads

Titus lives in a near-future version of America, where science has advanced far enough to allow touristy space travel and about 70% of the population has what is called "the feed," an advanced form of the Internet combined with every social networking site you can possibly imagine—all implanted directly into people's heads.

Feed Summary - Shmoop

Titus's feed was installed when he was an infant, but Violet's wasn't installed until age 7. Unlike any of his other friends, Violet questions the feed, the government, and their way of life. Refusing to allow the government to categorize her based on her data, she decides to make it her mission to confuse her feed. Titus, in love, tags ...

In the dystopian world M.T. Anderson created in Feed, human beings are thought of as consumers first and as people second, if at all. The "Feed" the title refers to is a chip implemented in people's brains at a young age and which allows them to be constantly connected to FeedNet.

Feed by M.T. Anderson ~ things mean a lot

Anderson (Handel, Who Knew What He Liked, 2001, etc.) has crafted a wickedly clever narrative in which Titus's voice takes on perfectly the speech patterns of today's more vapid teens (" 'Oh, unit,' I was like, 'is this malfunction?' "). When Violet's feed begins to fail, and with it all her life functions, she decides to ...
