Question: How do I determine the event's target element? Answer: Mouse events of all types (e.g. click, mousedown, mouseup, mousemove) have target elements; so do keyboard events (e.g. keydown, keypress, or keyup). For example, when you press a key while typing in a text box, the keydown event's target is the <input> element defining the text box. . When you release a key while typing in a ...

So, for the handful of you who don't follow me on social media, I had a little surprise to share the other night! There's not much I can say about this, for now. I jokingly answered a few questions on the night of the announcement, but the truth is that I don't really know enough about what's happening with this to discuss it. The article's got all the salient details.
