Eunoia (book) Eunoia is an anthology of univocalics by Canadian poet Christian Bök. Each chapter is written using words limited to a single vowel, producing sentences like: "Hassan can, at a handclap, call a vassal at hand and ask that all staff plan a bacchanal". The author believes "his book proves that each vowel has its own personality,...

Poet Christian Bok reads from Eunoia

Community Reviews. Christian Bök's Eunoia was an enlightening study on the different permutations and uses of vowels within words and sentences. As an exploration of language, I thought the book was very well done: each chapter was dedicated to a vowel, giving the vowel a certain character and theme on top of its sound.

Christian Bök's Eunoia is a playful example of what you can do with and without each of our five vowels. Each vowel has its own chapter, in which it has a starring role - in that no other vowel appears. At all. A univocal lipogram. You might think that this would result in a short or nonsense book. Not at all - there are genuinely 69 pages of ...
